

Categories For Submitting Blogs

A blog is a website which is regularly updated by an individual or an entity. Because of the various purposes of blogs, the popularity of blogs has increased in the recent years. Some companies update their own blogs regularly while some allow the visitors to submit their posts. By submitting their blogs; the users get opportunity to share their opinions.

There are various purposes of submitting blogs like some companies regulate these websites to market their products and services while some blogs are very informative.

There are various types of blogs which are generally different on the basis of the type of content and the way the content is delivered or written. All these types of blogs can be submitted on the blogs websites. The first type of blogs is personal blogs which are considered as the ongoing diary or commentaries by individuals. It is most common type of blog and it is more traditional.

Interestingly, some personal blogs are never read by any person but individuals generally maintain these blogs for their own satisfaction. One example of a personal blog is microblogging which is getting very popular. Twitter is a kind of microblogging where you can submit blogs and interact with your friends.

Another famous types of blogs are corporate blogs which can be private or professional and usually people cannot submit blogs on these blog websites. These blogs are meant for marketing, branding or to maintain public relations. The companies submit blogs in their blog sites on regular basis. The third type of blog is Question blogging which is a category of blog that answers questions. The individuals submit the questions in the form of a submittal form, via mails or telephones or VOIP.

Some blogs are categorized on the basis of type of media like vblog consists of videos and linklog comprise of links. A blog which consists of portfolio of sketches is known as sketchblog while the one which contains photos is known as photoblog. Interestingly, one rare kind of blog is Phlog which is hosted on Gopher Protocol. Therefore, there are various kinds of media blogs.

Blogs can be also categorized on the basis of the device through which the blog is composed like if you write a blog with a mobile then it is known as moblog. The kinds of blogs do not limit there and some types of blogs are based on genre like fashion blogs, niche blogs, political blogs and travel blogs etc.

Therefore, blog website provide a way to users to submit blogs according to their interest and skills. The best thing about a blog is that after reviewing a blog post, the reader can give his comments regarding the blog in the comment section.

About the Author

For more information on blog blogging, visit internetregistration.here12.net.

Source: <http://RealReadz.com>